

A Talent to Annoy: Essays, Articles and Reviews, 1929-68 (Oxford Paperbacks)

This collection spans Nancy Mitfords career as a journalist, from its beginnings to shortly before her death and includes pieces from Vogue, The Sunday Times, Atlantic Monthly and The Spectator among other periodicals. The book includes The English aristocracy, The secret history of a London wedding and A queen of France and many other pieces on fashion and fashionable life, both contemporary and historical, in several countries. Most of the essays begin with excerpts of correspondence between Mitford and her friends, including Evelyn Waugh.
