

Across The Galaxy

In a small, dusty town in Arizona, seventeen year-old Alina Leone is hiding. Every single thing that could qualify her as a normal teen was taken from her long ago--in a galaxy far, far away. Forced to remain cut off and detached from her classmates, Alina's best friend is her horse, Nightingale--not so lonely when your pet can speak to you in your head. Desperate to belong somewhere, Alina's favorite hobby is daydreaming of a life she can't even remember, on a planet she can never return to. At least not until the Shadows, the monsters who killed her parents and chased her from her own galaxy years ago, are found and destroyed. Alina hopes that day happens later rather than sooner. But on a starry night during a quiet horseback ride, something dark and sinister finds her after all. Is it the same creatures that murdered her parents and forced her to flee to Earth all of those years ago or something else entirely? Alina soon finds out she's not as hidden as she thinks. And the Shadows will stop at nothing to destroy the only thing standing in their way for universal domination - Alina. She must find the strength to defeat them, even if it means choosing between victory and the life of her one true love...Fans of I Am Number Four and Amy Bartols Under Different Stars will love this book!
