

Kicking and Screaming: Chronicles of the Morrighan Society Book One

Why did Shelly Fergus blow her husband Ricks head off with a shotgun on a chilly spring morning just a few short months ago? Young and crazy in love, they had finally realized their dream of buying their own home on the outskirts of Monongalia County and life was good. The tragedy wrecked the lives of two families and triggered a media frenzy that enflamed half the state against her. In the eyes of the world, shes a cold-blooded killer, but Shelly has a terrifying secret that no one would believe even if she had the courage to tell them. Lacey DeLaney, a cynical, twice-divorced attorney, lives alone in a tiny house with two spoiled cats and spends every Friday evening with her best friends, Tish MacFarlane and Penny Elliot. One Friday evening, a typical get-together goes rapidly sideways as Lacey finds herself embroiled in a bet between Tish and Penny and agreeing to go on a ghost hunt, despite viewing anything smacking of the supernatural with a mixture of amusement and contempt. When Penny introduces Lacey and Tish to Shelly soon after their unfortunate wager, she convinces them to investigate the evil Shelly believes dwells within the walls of her former home, if only to help her prove to herself that shes not insane. Lacey's skeptical of her claim of self-defense, but despite her misgivings, she accompanies Tish and Penny to the Fergus house for what she foolishly believes will be her first and last ghost hunt. Join this unlikely trio of ghost hunters, along with mild-mannered empath Mary McDonald, on their wild ride through demonic mayhem and ghostly madness, where only the deep bonds of friendship they share can bring them safely through to this misadventures shocking end.
