

The Domsday Diary

In its relentless pursuit of nuclear weapons, Iran never lost sight of one thing: their use would almost certainly invite retaliation. Unless her enemies could first be brought to their knees by other means, the likelihood of emerging unscathed from such a cataclysm would be almost nil. The US, the UK and Israel must be rendered incapable of responding, their militaries struck down inside their submarines and silos, their governments laid low and their populations devastated - all by an enemy far more ancient than Iran. Only then could Iran hope to at last erase the Jews from the face of the Earth.
