

Descent Into Dementia: Who Am I and Where Are We Now?

Living with a spouse that has Alzheimers or Dementia with Lewy Bodies could perhaps be summed up by the statement, There is a STRANGER in my home! Simultaneously here - yet gone. In this book of short poetic essays, Mrs. Chism (who also suffers from a life limiting illness) shares from a spouse and caregivers perspective, the past several years of her husbands decline due to the devastating effects of Dementia. She shares her emotions and fears, as she watches the Dementia slowly devour his essence bit by bit; never to return. She paints a vivid and often heartbreaking picture for the reader of what daily life is like for her husband and her. With the ups, downs, struggles, challenges, and losses that Alzheimers and Dementia bring. Her hope is that by sharing their painful story, others will gain a better awareness and understanding of these awful diseases of the mind. The book also contains a list of helpful resources on Dementia, Alzheimers, and aging; where one can find additional information, help, hope, and a sense of community.
