

Starlight (Pact Arcanum Book 4)

The Wanderer Earth, 2142. A century has passed since his fathers death, and Antonio Jameson has returned home to pay his respects to a man he never had a chance to know, but has always resented. Captain of the Jumpvessel Singularity, he has spent his entire adult life navigating the void between the stars, blissfully avoiding any part of the fate that the higher powers had decreed for him in the war between the White Wind and the Red. But in a world where immortality is commonplace, death is not always what it seems, and destiny is not so easily cast aside. The Mentor In memory of his love for Tobias, Rafael became Antonios closest friend and ally, supporting his proteges advancement in the Spacer Guild despite the deep disapproval of Antonios family. Both Spacers have their secrets, however, and nothing stays buried forever. Will the truth set them free, or tear them apart? The Spy Razheel has served the Court of Shadows faithfully for over one hundred years as the Nights Herald without openly taking sides in the divide between the Courts Nightwalker and Daywalker factions. Now, after thirty thousand years of conflict, something new walks the Earth, which may be the greatest weapon yet in the battle between the races. As Antonios fate becomes clear, she steps seamlessly into the role of revolutionary, and all of her carefully laid plans rise to fruition. The war comes full circle, and one womans actions may set her entire race on the path to salvation or lead it to extinction.
