Crescent Guardian, a national security company that specializes in safeguarding Federal, State, Municipal, Commercial, Energy, Transportation and other Critical Infrastructure, understands the importance of safety in today's volatile world. That's why they devote themselves to developing innovative security solutions for both the usual and unthinkable scenarios. While integrating state-of-the-art security technology with traditional guard services plays a critical role in Crescent Guardians protection plans, the company wanted to see how individuals across the United States are staying safe and alert. They asked people to submit their out-of-the-box security ideas for deception, detection, protection and surveillance that are used in their home or business. The ideas received spanned a broad range of professionals and private citizens from all walks of life. The following content goes into why security is important and offers clever, simple ideas that can be easily, and often inexpensively, implemented at your home or business.
